

Packing Guide and Advice

Packing tips:

1. Clear the clutter: You must try to clear all the unwanted things that have not been used by you. You can donate those things to the charity or even sell them at auction, flea markets, through classified advertisements and the like to earn money from the old stuff. It is beneficial as it aims at removing the clutter from your home and earns the extra cash.
2. Use boxes of same size: You should use boxes of same size as it makes packing easier. It will help in stacking both while packing as well as keeping in the truck. It would save time in deciding how to get all the boxes stacked without damaging any thing.
3. Use boxes of small size: It is advisable to use small boxes in order to save energy of both you and the moving team.
4. A good quality of tape would be useful.
5. You can also use wardrobe boxes because your clothes would remain clean and you can even put your shoes, purses and boots at the bottom.
6. Write the name of the rooms on the outer side of the boxes. It will help you arrange them in the rooms where they are supposed to be, without wasting time.
7. You can even mention the content of the boxes so that you can locate things easily.
8. You can pack all the things that you would require immediately after shifting in one box so that you don't have to juggle around with different boxes in order to get one necessary thing

<http://www.removals-company.co.uk>

Where to start

Start packing things that are not used very frequently as you don't have to open boxes when in removal. Check out the garage, attic, cellar and cupboards for things to be packed first. Place a table in the centre of the area where you are packing, putting your boxes and packing material near it for easy access. Try to be systematic. Decide where to start, and proceed to pack in a methodical fashion

<http://www.removals-company.co.uk>

How to pack

From experience of removal London Always make sure to place heavier articles at the bottom of the packing box and progressively lighter ones as you go to the top is very crucial when moving house. Everything should be packed to ensure as snug a fit as possible. Fill gaps with crumpled newspaper, which is usually the handiest material available. This would prevent things from shifting about in their boxes in moving house, minimizing removals damage

<http://www.removals-company.co.uk>

Breakables stuff

Breakables should be packed separately especial in domestic removals London. Place a layer of crumpled newspaper at the bottom of the box and line it with a small sheet of bubble wrap. It would provide a base of soft padding. Wrap each piece to be placed in the box in a sheet of old newspaper and cover it with bubble wrap. Plates can be packed in sets of five or six, with a layer of bubble wrap between each. Glasses can be packed in partitioned boxes, the kind used in shipping bottles that can be had from a wine store. Otherwise as movers London use a simple medium sized cardboard box. Nestle the glasses into one another. This is done by wrapping one glass with a sheet of newspaper, making sure that the inside is lined too, and placing a similarly wrapped glass into it. You could be situated four to five glasses together, depending on their size and weight. Then lay the whole stack on a sheet of newsprint, and carefully wrap it up, tucking in the ends of the paper. Then wrap the stack in bubble wrap and seal it with adhesive tape.

Goblets and other stemware can be wrapped in a similar manner, but cannot be nestled. They should be packed individually making sure that they are adequately protected, using a bubble wrap. Provide cushioning of crumpled newspapers between each layer of packed articles in the box. Also, make sure that each layer is packed with cushioning between the individual items, to eliminate shifting about and consequent damage on house removal. Pack glasses as the last layer at the top of the box, and place a layer of crumpled newspapers on top. When the box is full, make sure that it is not over packed, and then cover with sheets of newspaper and bubble wrap, closing the lid and sealing it properly with strong adhesive tape. Mark and label the box in thick bold letters with lettering such as: this side up, glassware, fragile... that helps London movers

<http://www.removals-company.co.uk>

Special moving house boxes

It would be best to purchase specialized packing boxes from easy removals or any other removals company for packing table lamps, pictures, mirrors, mattresses and rugs.

Selecting removals box size smaller boxes should be used to pack articles small in size but heavy in weight, like books, canned goods, records etc. Items that are not heavy but are bulky, such as small kitchen appliances, and utensils like pots and pans, should be packed in larger boxes. The largest boxes should carry the bulkiest of items, which weigh the least. These would include blankets, pillows, lampshades, shoes and toys. However, whatever the size of the box, over packing should be avoided in removals.

Weight of packed moving boxes

Boxes should be packed in such a way that the weight of the small boxes is within 40 lbs, the medium ones weighing within 50 lbs, and the largest not above 50lbs

<http://www.removals-company.co.uk>

Last minute of home removal

Make an inventory sheet and assign a code for what is inside each box, marking the box accordingly with a corresponding endorsement on the inventory sheet and its better if you give a copy to house removals London Company. In the end, make doubly sure that all boxes have their lids securely closed with strong tape to prevent them from opening during removals

<http://www.removals-company.co.uk>